Envisors latters for us should be addressed in Present in Continual and the discontinual and the discontinual and the discontinual and the present railroad war is not settled within the next forty-eight hours the most lively content of this kind which has ever prevailed on this continent may be looked for. Though there have been no new developments of particular significance since the first reduction in passenger rakes was announced, by et the feeling in railway circles was unusually excited yesterday, and the city was full of rumors as to startling and decisive moves that would shortly be made. Some of these rumors are undoubtedly the result of overexcited imaginations, especially those which refer to a large break in the freight rates. The roads are not yet ready to take such a step, knowing what disastrous realism and the disastrous results would follow. None of the roads are in a healthy financial condition, and, while they will be able to stand a passenger war for some time, they will not be able to stand a freight war for a month, as from this source most of their revenue is derived. The war may ultimately extend to the freight business, but certainly not until every means for a peaceful settlement of the present difficulties have been exhausted. Many of the wild rumors are undoubted to the cright war for a month, as from this source most of their revenue is derived. The war may ultimately extend to the freight business, but certainly not until every means for a peaceful settlement of the present difficulties have been exhausted. Many of the wild rumors are undoubted to the continual properties o tamny not unit every means for a less dangerous peie peaceful settlement of the present difficulties have been exhausted. Many of the wild rumors are undoubtedly spread to frighten some of the railroad managers, and especially those of the Pennsylvania Company, and induce them to come to terms. It is improbable, however, that the managers of this line can be induced to recede from the position they have taken until the Wabash and Canada Southern roads take off their fast train or agree to some satisfactory compromise. It is unnecessary to refer to all the wild rumors and speculations which went the rounds year stready, as it would serve no good purpose. It will be sufficient and more satisfactory to hose interested in this contest to announce merely such new mores as the side of reform.

The steps taken yesterday were all confine to the passenger business, and the most important of these is the decision of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and Michigan Central Railroads to put on fast trains next Saturday or Sunday, These trains will leave this city at 1:30 p. M. and reach New York at 7 p. M. the following day. The morning and evening express trains will not be interfered with the bits areas grants and will leave the state of t Michigan Central Natiroaus to put on fast trains next Saturday or Sunday. M. the following day. The morning and evening express trains will not be interfered with by this arrangement, and will leave at the regular time. It has been decided to run these special fast trains to catch the traffic from the West which arrives here on the morning trains. A concession was made to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yesterday by making the rates to Philadelphia, Washington and Harrisburg the same as to New York ~$15 00. It has been previously stated that the Baltimore & Ohio Ind threatened to cut the New York rates to $10 if the fight extended to Baltimore business. To pacify this road, the above concession was made by all the lines. This will keep the war confined to New York and Boston business for the present, and the Baltimore & Ohio will remain a passive spectator. Information was also received here yesterday that the Wabash Road and the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw had taken a hand in this game and played several trumps yesterday. These roads have reduced the rates from Keckuk, Quincy, Burlington and Peoria to $15,—the same rate as a charged from Chicago to New York. This checkmates the road leading from those points to this city, as they will be unable to compete on through traffic, no matter how large a reduction they should make. For this reason they

Many persons are at a loss to understand how it is that public securities are maintained at existing prices with a great war raging in Europe, in the progress of which so many States are more or less directly interested, and the ultimate limits of which it is impossible to for ease. It should be borne in mind that there is a large class of capitalists who hold both English and French Government stocks as a source of income, feeling perfectly certain that they will always get their interest, even if they have to see a very considerable depreciation in the principal for months without a recovery. In consequence of the numerous defaults which foreign Governments have made, an enormous mass of capital has been, so to speak, all driven into one corner, and the highest class of public securities are now held probably more strongly than ever before by investors who are indifferent to the market quotations, and only care for the punctual payment of the 3 per cent per annum, or whatever the yield of interest may be. Some new enterprises are timidly brought forward, but there is reason to believe that they meet with but a lukewarm support from the public. While, therefore, the exit to floating capital is practically closed in this direction for the present, bankers are competing with capitalists generally for securities of a sound nature in the absence of bills of exchange, which are still very scarce and likely to be while merchants are fairly in the propriets and and unchanged prices. There is a wide and gratifying revival of genuine temperance work—not political "work," but the redemption of individual men and women from the habit or disease of alcoholic stimulation. Churches and other organizations are carrying on this work quite actively in some localities, less so in others. The churches belong in this business, because we doubt not that Rev. E. E. Hale is right when he says that the reformed drinker must be brought under the influence of the gospel, and receive a new accession of moral strength to enable him to stand in total abstinence. So that while there is a certain, perhaps, inevitable per cent of backsliding from the safe course, moral advance in temperance as in other things going at a hitching gait and not by a uniform mode of progression, a reformed person who is born again at the same time into a new religious life, new associations and social influences, rarely goes back from it into his old course. We are not speaking now of merely formal conversion, or of religious "experiences" which will enliven a prayer meeting when well told, but of the genuine change of a man's course of life require change of a man's course of life 10%c. Provisions—We can report a stealy consumptive demand. A Cincinnati paper says of the sarket: "The variation in values has been very slight during the past week, and in no case has the market lost, but rather gained. Stocks are comparatively light, and holders seem to be anticipating an advance. The low rates have increased the consumptive demand very smaterially for all all kinds of meats. There are a large amount of stock being quietly disposed of. The shipments this week are much larger than usual, amounting to 2,323,502 pounds. This is all going into consumption. Very little speculative movement. Good demand for lard for export, with light offerings." We quote prices as follows: Mess Pork—$15 50.
